Dear Julia,

Happy 8 months!!! It's kinda crazy how we've made it so far, especially with everything that happened in the past. There are so many things about our relationship now that just weren't there before, and I'm so so glad we worked things out and that everything is so healthy now 😊. Even though we've been through some rough times recently especially with all our arguments, I really love our relationship. I feel like the fact that we can get over those situations just shows how much we improved together. Whenever I'm going through something hard, especially now with my work and all this new stuff I'm dealing with, you've been so supportive and kind. Even when you're dealing with things yourself you make sure that I'm okay. I'm so grateful for you and I'm gonna be the best boyfriend I can be. I know long distance has been hard recently, but I think it makes me appreciate the little things between us. There are so many times where we're just laughing on call about the smallest things and it makes my heart so happy and full. All those calls where one of us is sleepy are also so fun. Whenever you're sleepy you have the cutest voice and attitude, even if you are a little fiery. You're so adorable and sweet, obviously you are all the time but especially more during those times. I love you so so so much my princess.

Love, Braden
